Songs from the Leuven Chansonnier

IN NOVEMBER 2014 A SMALL MANUSCRIPT book of music was sold as part of a lot at an auction in Brussels. A year later the book was brought to the Alamire Foundation in Leuven, Belgium, where it was quickly recognized as a hitherto unknown, complete and intact songbook from the late fifteenth century—the most important discovery of fifteenth-century polyphonic music in nearly a century. The book was eventually purchased by the King Baudouin Foundation and deposited on permanent loan with the Alamire Foundation in Leuven’s Park Abbey.

The Leuven Chansonnier appears to have been copied in central France in the years around 1470-75. It contains fifty songs, all without ascription to a composer, including works elsewhere ascribed to the leading musicians of the day — Johannes Ockeghem, Antoine Busnoys, and their contemporaries — and a dozen songs which were previously unknown. Among the latter are songs that quote Ockeghem’s Ma maistresse and Quant de vous seul and a four-voice song (Donnez l’aumosne) that bears a musical “fingerprint” associated with Busnoys.

This program arranges songs from the Leuven Chansonnier (and a few related pieces from contemporary sources) into a cycle exploring the panoply of emotions experienced by the lover: bedazzlement, loyal devotion, suspicion, betrayal, despair, nostalgia, and hope. Our composers include Ockeghem, the most famous and influential composer of the mid- to late fifteenth century and also the best represented in the Leuven Chansonnier, with six songs; Busnoys, his closest rival and a considerably more prolific songwriter, with four songs known to be his in Leuven; Barbingant, whose first name is unknown, all of whose three known French songs are in Leuven; Robert Morton, an Englishman who worked for the Burgundian court, with two songs in Leuven; and, of course, anonymous.

We open with Morton’s charming Plus j’ay le monde regardé. Morton left us just a small handful of songs — apparently only seven, although a further four were ascribed to him, surely incorrectly, by one scribe or another. Plus j’ay le monde survives in just one source, where it lacks the text of all but its first strophe. Since we are thus unable to sing the piece as a complete rondeau, we alternate instrumental and vocal renditions. Now, Plus j’ay le monde is actually one of two songs on our program that are not in the Leuven Chansonnier, which is a great pity, because the Leuven scribes were generally careful to provide full texts. There are, however, two other songs by Morton in Leuven, his two most widely disseminated: N’aray je jamais mieux que j’ay and Le souvenir de vous me tue, of which we now have 17 and 16 copies, respectively. Le souvenir, performed on this program, is surely one of the loveliest songs of the fifteenth century, but I would be happy to trade our sixteenth extant source of it for a complete version of Plus j’ay le monde.

It is sometimes difficult to account for the distribution of music in the fifteenth century. What strikes us as a superb song may survive in a single source, while more mundane works come down to us in multiple copies. Among the former is Busnoys’s Je m’esbais de vous — the other song on our program which is not found in the Leuven Chansonnier, but like Plus j’ay le monde really ought to be there. (At least it is transmitted complete in its unique source.) Then as now, fashion and fame are no guarantee of artistic quality, nor vice versa.

But while the compilers of the Leuven Chansonnier overlooked (or simply lacked access to) Je m’esbais de vous and Plus j’ay le monde, they certainly assembled a superlative collection of music and, as mentioned above, twelve of the fifty songs in Leuven survive nowhere else. All twelve of these unica are well worth studying and performing and several are of a very high quality indeed. We feature three on this program: Si vous voulez, Par Mallebouche, and Donnez l’aumosne.

The virelai Si vous voulez que je vous aime takes as its point of departure the opening melodic gesture of the contratenor part of Ockeghem’s virelai Ma maistresse. To quote a contratenor line, rather than the much more usual tenor or discantus, is a surprising move, and the anonymous composer of Se vous voulez also deploys the material in a self-consciously virtuoso fashion, for example beginning on a pickup to a syncopation, so that it is some time before the listener may correctly perceive the song’s metric organization. As Fabrice Fitch has written, “the song is placed from the start under the sign of strangeness.” It is also assured, expressive, and compelling.

Par Malle Bouche la cruelle refers to a character from the Roman de la rose. Malle Bouche — Evil Tongue, Rumor, or Slander, qualified in the Rose as “le jangleor,” the gossip — is one of a band of allegorical characters mustered up to defend the Rose (i.e. the Lady) against a lover whose advances may threaten her self-possession, reputation, or honor.

Our final song, Donnez l’aumosne, is the only four-voice song in the Leuven Chansonnier, and it has words copied beneath all four voices, in contrast to the norm of three voices with text only in the topmost part. We recorded it in a concert performance with four singers in 2018, long before most of us had ever heard of a coronavirus.

Donnez l’aumosne shares with the anonymous Quant je fus pris au pavillon and Busnoys’s Je m’esbais de vous a striking rhythmic/melodic gesture, some version of the following:

Sean Gallagher has pointed out that this gesture (he labels it pattern “z”) is found over 30 times in Busnoys’s music. Pattern “z” is found only rarely in works from the 1460s and 70s by Busnoys’s contemporaries, although it became common by the 1490s. The presence of pattern “z” in Donnez l’aumosne and Quant je fus prins, together with the harmonic diminished fifths that feature in both (as well as in Je m’esbais de vous), identified by Peter Urquhart as another feature of Busnoys’s style, must point strongly to a composer close to Busnoys in some sense — geographical, stylistic — if not to Busnoys himself.

Les desloyaulx is one of Ockeghem’s less well-known songs. Beneath its deceptively simple surface lurks an abundance of close imitation at unusual intervals — at the second or fourth, in an era when virtually all imitation is at the unison, octave, or fifth. What is Ockeghem playing at here? The text could have been written yesterday. Plus ça change …

Barbingant’s Esperant que mon bien vendra, like most of the songs on our program and, indeed, most fifteenth-century songs, is a rondeau in the cyclical form ABaAbAB: A, B, a and b correspond to poetic and musical sections, the capital letters indicating that both text and music are repeated exactly as a refrain (there are thus both long and short refrains, AB and A, respectively), whereas small letters indicate new text set to already-heard music. As Christopher Page has observed, the dynamics of the rondeau form present at once a challenge and an opportunity: the B section should offer something musically new and memorable, something that will catch the listener’s attention and inspire a wish to hear it again, a desire that will only be fulfilled after three complete reiterations of the A music. In Esperant que mon bien vendra Barbingant accomplishes the trick by a sudden shift to the minor; the major mode of the A section returns only in the last moments before the final cadence.

To our songs with words we add two without, from contemporary sources other than Leuven. Johann Tinctoris’s Le souvenir is an ornate and metrically complicated diminution version of the melody of Morton’s song, played above its (necessarily somewhat slowed-down) tenor. Malor me bat must have originated as a song, apparently a rondeau, but not one of its nine sources (none of which is French) provides text beyond the evocative first three words. It is ascribed variously to Ockeghem, Johannes Martini, and Malcort, whoever the last may be. In cases of multiple ascriptions, generally the least known composer is the most likely to be correct, and there are additional reasons why the piece is probably not by Ockeghem or Martini, so Malcort’s it is.

THE LEUVEN CHANSONNIER, which measures a mere 120 × 85 cm, is the smallest of half a dozen songbooks that were copied in central France in the years around 1465-1480. (The other five, known collectively as the Loire Valley chansonniers, are identified either by the name of a prior owner or by their current location: Copenhagen, Dijon, Laborde, Nivelle de la Chaussée, and Wolfenbüttel.) It is also the plainest, decorated only by simple colored initial letters and, as a frontispiece, a coat of arms that seems to date from after the original compilation of the book. Its more sumptuous companions feature historiated initials, floral borders, illustrations of animals and grotesques of all kinds — in their early pages, at least, before the project ran out of money or patronage or whatever steam was driving the operation. Some of the more elaborate decorations from a contemporary songbook are found in the Chansonnier cordiforme or “Heart-shaped songbook” copied in Savoy in the 1470s. The marvelous backdrop for this performance of songs from the Leuven Chansonnier is adapted from its frontispiece. Our warmest thanks to Paul Guttry, who not only sings in Donnez l’aumosne but also designed and painted all the scenery and decorated the set for our recording.

A note on colors for those with an eye for fashion

… les symboles médiévaux se caractérisent davantage par des modes d’intervention que par telle ou telle signification particulière. Si l’on prend l’exemple des couleurs, on peut ainsi affirmer que le rouge n’est pas tant la couleur qui signifie la passion ou le péché que la couleur qui intervient violemment (en bien ou en mal) ; le vert, la couleur qui est cause de rupture, de désordre puis de renouveau ; le bleu, celle qui calme ou qui stabilise ; le jaune, celle qui excite ou qui transgresse. En donnant priorité à ces modes d’intervention sur les codes de signification, l’historien conserve au symbole toute son ambivalence, son ambiguïté même ; ambiguïté qui fait partie de sa nature la plus profonde et qui est nécessaire à son bon fonctionnement.

Medieval symbols are characterized more by their modes of intervention than by this or that meaning in particular. To take the example of colors, one may say that red is not so much the color that signifies passion or sin as the color that intervenes violently, for good or for bad; green, the color that is the cause of rupture, disorder, and then renewal; blue, that calms or stabilizes; yellow, that excites or transgresses. In granting priority to these modes of intervention over codes of signification, the historian conserves for the symbol all its ambivalence, even its ambiguity: ambiguity which is part of its most profound nature and which is necessary for its correct functioning.

On account of cruel Slander,
inimical, false, and hostile,
I have lost your friendship,
noble pinnacle of faith,
whence I am mortally stricken at heart.

Why should I conceal it from you, seeing as you are the one for whom I suffer such chagrin?

On account of cruel Slander,
inimical, false, and hostile,
I have lost your friendship.

Never in my suit has there been anything but loyalty: inquire into it, and put things there into such order that shortly I may have relief from my pain, which is ever renewed

On account of cruel Slander …

The disloyal are in season
and no one takes account of the good,
but Legitimate Right makes a terrible mistake
by permitting such great unreason.

I do not know for what occasion
Fortune raises them up so high.

The disloyal are in season
and no one takes account of the good.

To name a prince or noble house would be to earn reproach and shame:
therefore I keep silent, but in the end everything happens without rhyme or reason.

When I was imprisoned in the pavillion
of my most noble and fair lady,
I burned myself in the candle
just like the moth.

I blazed red as vermillion,
flaming like a spark,

When I was imprisoned in the pavillion

If I had been a merlin or had I had strong enough wings,
I could have saved myself from the one who pierced me with her stinger.

When I was imprisoned in the pavillion …

Hoping that my reward will come
after very long suffering,
I shall remain loyal, whatever loss
or harm come to me.

Now come what may,
I await my just desserts,

Hoping that my reward will come
after very long suffering.

I know not how I shall be treated,
but since I have offered my faith
without any concealed trickery,
my wish shall remain entirely the same:

Hoping that my reward will come …
Le souvenir de vous me tue,

Car je vous jure sus ma foy,

Qué c’estoit pour nous grant honneur,
Mais toutesfois, puis qu’elle lesse,

The memory of you kills me,

for I swear to you upon my faith,
without you my joy is lost.

my only love, when I do not see you.

Alone I remain, destitute,
from no soul do I receive comfort;
this grief I suffer without complaint
until your return.

The memory of you kills me …

I am shocked at you, my heart,
That you thus persist in the folly
Of serving our mistress.
Seeing that you know that she has ceased
To love us, it is a great error.

True it is that she is of such merit
That it was a great honor for us,
But nevertheless, since she leaves off loving,

I am shocked at you, my heart,
That you thus persist in the folly
Of serving our mistress.

Leave off, that is the best course,
Without further increasing my pain:
By God, I have more than enough of it!
Your goodness and nobility
Make me pay for my favors.

BLUE HERON has been acclaimed by The Boston Globe as “one of the Boston music community’s indispensables” and hailed by Alex Ross in The New Yorker for its “expressive intensity.” The ensemble ranges over a wide repertoire from plainsong to new music, with particular specialities in 15th-century Franco-Flemish polyphony and early 16th-century English sacred music, and is committed to vivid live performance informed by the study of original source materials and historical performance practices.

Founded in 1999, Blue Heron presents a concert series in Cambridge, Massachusetts, and has appeared at the Boston Early Music Festival; in New York City at Music Before 1800, The Cloisters (Metropolitan Museum of Art), and the 92nd Street Y; at the Library of Congress, the National Gallery of Art, and Dumbarton Oaks in Washington, D.C.; at the Berkeley Early Music Festival; at Yale University; in Chicago, Cleveland, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Montreal, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Providence, St. Louis, San Luis Obispo, Seattle, and Vancouver; and in Cambridge and London, England. Blue Heron has been in residence at the Center for Early Music Studies at Boston University and at Boston College, and has enjoyed collaborations with A Far Cry, Dark Horse Consort, Les Délices, Parthenia, Piffaro, and Ensemble Plus Ultra.

Blue Heron’s first CD, featuring music by Guillaume Du Fay, was released in 2007. Between 2010 and 2017 the ensemble issued a 5-CD series of Music from the Peterhouse Partbooks, including many world premiere recordings of works copied c. 1540 for Canterbury Cathedral and restored by Nick Sandon. The fifth CD was awarded the 2018 Gramophone Classical Music Award for Early Music and the five discs are now available as a set entitled The Lost Music of Canterbury. In 2015 Professor Jessie Ann Owens and Blue Heron won the Noah Greenberg Award from the American Musicological Society to support the world premiere recording of Cipriano de Rore’s I madrigali a cinque voci, released in 2019. In 2015 Blue Heron also inaugurated Ockeghem@600, a multi-season project to perform the complete works of Johannes Ockeghem (c. 1420-1497), which will wind up around 2022 in time to commemorate the composer’s circa-600th birthday. A parallel project to record all of Ockeghem’s songs and motets bore its first fruits in 2019 with the release of Johannes Ockeghem: Complete Songs, Volume I, which was named to the Bestenliste of the Preis der deutschen Schallplattenkritik. Blue Heron’s recordings also include a CD of plainsong and polyphony that accompanies Thomas Forrest Kelly’s book Capturing Music: The Story of Notation, the live recording Christmas in Medieval England, and a compilation of medieval songs entitled A 14th-Century Salmagundi.

Michael Barrett is a Boston-based conductor, singer, multi-instrumentalist, and teacher. He has performed with many professional early music ensembles, including Blue Heron, the Boston Camerata, the Huelgas Ensemble, Vox Luminis, the Handel & Haydn Society, Nederlandse Bachvereniging (Netherlands Bach Society), Seven Times Salt, Schola Cantorum of Boston, and Nota Bene, and can be heard on the harmonia mundi, Blue Heron, Coro, and Toccata Classics labels. Michael serves as music director of The Boston Cecilia, Convivium Musicum, and the MIT Meridian Singers. He is also an Assistant Professor at the Berklee College of Music, where he teaches courses in conducting and European music history. Michael holds degrees in music (AB, Harvard University), voice (First Phase Diploma, Royal Conservatory in The Hague, The Netherlands), and choral conducting (MM, Indiana University; DMA, Boston University).

Pamela Dellal, mezzo-soprano, has enjoyed a distinguished career as a soloist and recitalist. She has performed in Symphony Hall, the Kennedy Center, Avery Fisher Hall, and the Royal Albert Hall, and premiered a chamber work by John Harbison in New York, San Francisco, Boston, and London. With Sequentia, Dellal has recorded the music of Hildegard von Bingen and toured the US, Europe, and Australia. Passionate about chamber music, early music, and contemporary music, she has appeared frequently with Dinosaur Annex, Boston Musica Viva, Ensemble Chaconne, Blue Heron, and the Musicians of the Old Post Road. She has been a regular soloist with Emmanuel Music for over thirty-five years and is close to accomplishing her goal of singing all the alto movements in Bach’s sacred works. She has made over forty commercial recordings, for Artona, BMG, CRI, Dorian, Meridian, KOCH, and other labels. Dellal serves on the faculties of the Boston Conservatory at Berklee and the Longy School of Music of Bard College.

Bass-baritone Paul Guttry has performed throughout the USA and internationally with Sequentia, Chanticleer, the Boston Camerata, and New York’s Ensemble for Early Music. A founding member of Blue Heron, he has also appeared in and around Boston as soloist with Emmanuel Music, the Handel & Haydn Society, the Boston Early Music Festival, the Tanglewood Music Center, Cantata Singers, Boston Cecilia, Prism Opera, Boston Revels, Collage, the Boston Modern Orchestra Project, and Intermezzo. Paul can be heard on all Blue Heron’s record-ings, on discs of medieval music by Sequentia, Kurt Weill’s Johnny Johnson and French airs de cour with the Boston Camerata, and on Emmanuel Music’s Bach CDs.

Laura Jeppesen, player of historical stringed instruments, earned a master’s degree from Yale University. She then studied at the Hamburg Hochschule and the Brussels Conservatory with Wieland Kuijken. She has been a Woodrow Wilson Designate, a Fulbright Scholar, and a fellow of the Bunting Institute at Harvard. A prominent member of Boston’s early music community, she has long associations with The Boston Museum Trio, Boston Baroque, The Handel and Haydn Society, the Boston Early Music Festival, and Aston Magna. She has been music director at the American Repertory Theater, creating music for Christopher Marlowe’s Dido, Queen of Carthage, for which she earned an IRNE nomination for best musical score. In 2015, she was part of the BEMF team that won a Grammy for best opera recording. She has performed as soloist with conductors Christopher Hogwood, Edo de Waart, Seiji Ozawa, Craig Smith, Martin Pearlman, Harry Christophers, Grant Llewelyn, and Bernard Haitink. She has an extensive discography of solo and chamber works, including the gamba sonatas of J. S. Bach and music of Marais, Buxtehude, Rameau, Telemann, and Clerambault. She teaches at Boston University, Wellesley College, and Harvard University, where in 2015 and 2019 she won awards of special distinction in teaching from the Derek Bok Center. She is a 2017 recipient of an Andrew W. Mellon Blended Learning Initiative Grant for innovative teaching at Wellesley College. Her recent essay, “Aesthetics of Performance in the Renaissance: Lessons from Noblewomen,” appears in Uncovering Music of Early European Women 1250-1750, edited by Claire Fontijn.

Praised for her “rich, smooth mezzo soprano” (St. Louis Post), Kim Leeds has been a soloist with the American Bach Soloists Academy, Bach Akademie Charlotte, Ad Astra Musical Festival, Bach Society of St. Louis, and the Tafelmusik Baroque Chamber Orchestra and Choir. She was a Virginia Best Adams Fellow at Carmel Bach Festival. As a choral artist, Ms. Leeds has performed abroad with the Weimar Bach Academy and Junges Stuttgart Bach Ensemble, and in the US with the Oregon Bach Festival, the Handel & Haydn Society, the Grammy-nominated True Concord (Tucson), and the Grammy-winning ensemble The Crossing (Philadelphia). In the Boston area, Ms. Leeds has appeared as a soloist with the Commonwealth Chorale, the Cantata Singers, and Music at Marsh Chapel, and she can be heard on the 2017 Boston Modern Orchestra Project’s recording of Jeremy Gill’s Before the Wrestling Tides.
Described by The New York Times as a “lovely, tender high tenor” in one concert and “appropriately brash” in another, three-time Grammy nominee and Gramophone Award-winning tenor Owen McIntosh is widely known for the color and creativity he brings to the stage. Recent solo engagements include Carmina Burana with the Carmel Bach Festival, Monteverdi’s L’Orfeo with Apollo’s Fire, Bach’s St. John Passion with TENET, Mozart’s Die Zauberflöte with Boston Baroque, Haydn’s L’isola disabitata with the American Classical Orchestra, Monteverdi’s Vespers of 1610 with the Green Mountain Project, Bach’s St. Matthew Passion with the Grand Rapids Symphony and Monteverdi’s Il ritorno d’Ulisse in patria with Boston Baroque.

Reviews have praised Jason McStoots as having an “alluring tenor voice” (ArtsFuse) and as “the consummate artist, wielding not just a sweet tone but also incredible technique and impeccable pronunciation” (Cleveland Plain Dealer). In 2015 he won a Grammy award in Opera with the Boston Early Music Festival (BEMF) for their recording of works by Charpentier. His recent stage appearances in period-style baroque opera with BEMF include Le Jeu in Les plaisirs de Versailles by Charpentier, Apollo in Monteverdi’s Orfeo, and Eumete and Giove in Monteverdi’s Il ritorno d’Ulisse in patria. Other recent solo performances include Pedrillo in Mozart’s Aduction from the Seraglio, Bach’s Christmas Oratorio and St. Mark Passion with Emmanuel Music, and Monteverdi’s Vespers of 1610 with the Green Mountain Project. He has appeared with Boston Lyric Opera, Pacific MusicWorks, Boston Camerata, TENET, San Juan Symphony, The Bach Ensemble, Pablo Casals Festival, Early Music Guild of Seattle, Tragicomedia, and the Tanglewood Music Center. He is a core member of Blue Heron and can be heard on all their recordings. With BEMF, he appears on recordings of Lully’s Psyché (nominated for a Grammy), Handel’s Acis and Galatea (as Damon), John Blow’s Venus and Adonis (soloist), and Charpentier’s Actéon (as Orphée).

Scott Metcalfe is widely recognized as one of North America’s leading specialists in music from the fifteenth through seventeenth centuries and beyond. Musical and artistic director of Blue Heron since its founding in 1999, he was music director of New York City’s Green Mountain Project from 2010-19, and he has been guest director of TENET (New York), the Handel & Haydn Society (Boston), Emmanuel Music (Boston), the Toronto Consort, The Tudor Choir and Seattle Baroque, Pacific Baroque Orchestra (Vancouver, BC), Quire Cleveland, and the Dryden Ensemble (Princeton, NJ), in music ranging from Machaut to Bach and Handel. Metcalfe also enjoys a career as a baroque violinist, playing with Les Délices (dir. Debra Nagy), L’Harmonie des Saisons (dir. Eric Milnes), and other ensembles. His scholarly activities include research on the performance practice of English vocal music in the 16th and 17th centuries, including two studies that may finally be published next year in a long-forthcoming book, and he has edited music by Francisco de Peñalosa for Antico Edition (UK) and songs from the recently rediscovered Leuven chansonnier for the Alamire Foundation (Belgium); a longterm project is a new edition of the songs of Gilles Binchois (c.1400-1460). He has taught at Boston University and Harvard University and served as director of the baroque orchestra at Oberlin Conservatory, and in 2019-20 he was a visiting member of the faculty of Music History at the New England Conservatory, where he continues to teach classes. He received a bachelor’s degree from Brown University (1985), where he majored in biology, and a master’s degree in historical performance practice from Harvard (2005).

Praised for her “warm, colorful mezzo” by Opera News, Sophie Michaux has become one of Boston’s most versatile and compelling vocalists. Born in London and raised in the French Alps, Sophie’s unique background informs her artistic identity, making her feel at home in an eclectic span of repertoire ranging from grand opera to French cabaret songs. Sophie’s recent engagements include solo recitals of Barbara Strozzi’s music at the Fondazione Cini in Venice, in Annecy (France), and in Boston. A consummate singing actor, Sophie recently appeared as Ceres in the Boston Early Music Festival’s production of Michel de Lalande’s Les Fontaines de Versailles. With Lorelei Ensemble, Boston’s groundbreaking professional women’s vocal ensemble, she has been a featured soloist in numerous works from Renaissance polyphony to Björk. Sophie belongs to Beyond Artists, a coalition of artists who donate a percentage of their concert fees to organizations they care about. Through this performance, she supports The Ocean Clean Up.

Countertenor Reginald L. Mobley fully intended to speak his art through watercolors and oil pastels until circumstance demanded that his own voice should speak for itself. Since reducing his visual color palette to the black and white of a score, he’s endeavored to open up a wider spectrum onstage. After starting his classical music career as a member of twice Grammy-nominated ensemble Seraphic Fire, Reggie has appeared with the Academy of Ancient Music, Agave Baroque, Bach Collegium San Diego, Calgary Symphony, Monteverdi Choir & English Baroque Soloists, Pacific Music Works, the Royal Scottish...

He was music director for Cavalli’s La Calisto with New York’s Dell’Arte Opera in summer 2017, when The Observer remarked on “the superb baroque band led by Charles Weaver … it was amazing to hear what warm and varied sounds he coaxed from the ensemble.” He has served as assistant conductor for Juilliard Opera and has accompanied operas with the Yale Baroque Opera Project and the Boston Early Music Festival. As an orchestral musician, he has performed with the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the Virginia Symphony. His chamber appearances have included Quicksilver, Piffaro, Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center, the Folger Consort, Apollo’s Fire, Blue Heron, Musica Pacifica, and others. Acknowledgments

Blue Heron’s existence is made possible only through the devotion, hard work, and financial support of a large community of musicians, staff, board members, volunteers, donors, and concert-goers. Never has this been more true than in this extraordinary season of 2021–22. Many thanks to all those who join us in creating, nurturing, and sustaining an organization dedicated to making the music of the past come alive in the 21st century.

We are extraordinarily fortunate to work with a slate of talented, skilled, and devoted designers, engineers, videographers, and photographers. Our programs, printed publicity materials, and CDs were designed by Melanie Germond for years, until she retired from the business last year; we are now very happy to have a new relationship with John Kramer. FlashPrint in Harvard Square prints our programs — and we look forward eagerly to the day they are printed once again. Erik Bertrand built our website and keeps it functioning properly. Liz Linder is our photographer. Our concerts are recorded by Philip Davis (Cape Ann Recordings) or Joel Gordon. Joel is also the engineer for our CDs, working with our producer Eric Milnes. Kathy Wittman (Ball Square Films) is our videographer. In 2020–21 Joel and Kathy have stepped up to produce all of our events for remote broadcast. Our debt to these wonderful people who have shaped our look and sound is impossible to overstate.

Many thanks to our board and to all our dedicated volunteers for their help in person, this evening, and always.

We are honored and grateful to have so many generous donors. Thank you!
